DISCLAIMER

All efforts have been made to verify and collate information about Institutes included in the Directory. Information has been collected from various sources, namely directories, newsletters, Internet, telephonic verification, letter heads, etc.

However, NIPCCD does not take any responsibility for any error that may inadvertently have crept in.

The telephone numbers, e-mail IDs, focus areas of research, etc. change from time to time, hence NIPCCD may not be held liable for any incorrect information included in the Directory.

Foreword

International Organisations are specialised agencies whose mandate is to promote and accelerate sustainable development in developing countries and work towards improving the living conditions in the world's poorest countries by drawing on its combined global resources and expertise.

Vision of International Organisations is for a better social order free from all types of exploitation and for provision of basic needs for a civilized life, upgrading the living standard of common people along with healthy life and atmosphere.

It also aims to contribute to the building of peace, eradication of poverty, sustainable development and inter cultural dialogue, through education, the sciences, culture, communication and information. International Organisations has emerged with the aim to offer innovative solutions to remove the various taboos and obstacles in the way of social development regarding human rights, socio-economic, and environment and primary health issues in the remote and rural areas.

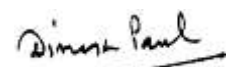

It is providing services for research and development activities through networking and manages their services by providing assistance.

The lives of people all over the world have come to be touched by the work of Organisations, as is evidenced by the interest taken by them in the protection of human rights and development. They perform important and indispensable roles in our world today, taking over allocative, redistributive and stabilizing functions.

International Organisations have reached out to the lowest level of population inhabited by the rural poor and render services to the unserved and underserved pockets of targets.

Various agencies are involved in a multitude of activities with a relentless and selfless serving attitude. Through the available websites, efforts have been made by the institute to bring together addresses of all such international organizations operational in our country in form of a Directory.

It is hoped that the Directory on International Organisations being brought out by NIPCCD will serve as a ready reckoner for researchers, students, teachers, professionals and other readers and will be useful for persons working for the empowerment of vulnerable sections of the society and other stake holders.
